

Brian Odlum / Composer

To The End

Alone again and far away
Though you're here within my heart
Everywhere the world is burning
And it's keeping us apart
As I drown among the angry dead
In a sea of violent strife
I know the time is dangerous
It might even take my life
Still I follow the dream to the end

There is nothing that I would not do for you
There is nothing to conceal
In the war against my psychic daemons
You are my only shield
As the dream of life together with you
Slowly fades into the dark
A catastrophe approaches
As the world falls apart
Still I follow the dream to the end

I assumed my life was mine to command
I forgot my feet of clay
You gave me everything I wanted
And taught me how to pray
I will leave this world a better man
For the battles that I fought
I will leave this world a kinder man
For the lesson that you taught
As I follow the dream to the end

Father, oh Father, how can this be?
How did my fate unfold?
Did I live my life outside your law?
Were my crimes so dark and cold?
I never considered I would die so young
I believed I would grow old
Now I find that only dust awaits
Where I thought I might find gold
As I follow the dream to the end

Everywhere I see your face
Looking for your touch of grace
It took so long to know my place
Hopeless, so hopeless, the human race